THE OLD FASHIONED

The first use of the name “Old Fashioned” for a Bourbon whiskey cocktail is said to have been at the Pendennis Club. The recipe was invented in honor of Colonel James E. Pepper, a prominent Bourbon distiller, who brought it to the Waldorf Astoria Hotel bar in New York City.

Old Fashioned

CLASSIC

Carrie Bradshaw

Vodka, Amontillado Sherry, Cranberry Grenadine, Lime (17)

Though this drink's origin is often-disputed, the most recognized creation of the Cosmo is credited to Toby Cecchinu, of The Odeon in Manhattan in 1987. According to Kyle Ford, a rep for Cointreau, he was introduced to the Cosmopolitan by co-worker Melissa Huffsmith. He put a fresh spin on the known South Beach and San Francisco versions.

His mix used Absolut Citron, Cointreau, cranberry juice, and fresh lime juice.

And the modern day Cosmo was born.

Vesper

Haku Vodka, Roku Gin, Mancino Sakura (18)

James Bond's first Martini in Ian Fleming's famous spy novels, the Vesper, appeared in Casino Royale (1953). It was named after the female lead, Vesper Lynd, not the little motorbike. The Vesper was actually created by a friend of Fleming, but Fleming liked it so much he put it in Casino Royale, making history, both by giving Bond a signature cocktail and by drastically increasing the popularity of shaking cocktails that are better made stirred.

Self-Starter

Sipsmith London Dry Gin, Manzanilla Sherry, Apricot, Absinthe (18)

Adapted from Harry Craddock's recipe, an English bartender who became famous in the US during the 1920's and 1930's. He is known for his tenure at the Savoy Hotel in London, and for his 1930 book, The Savoy Cocktail Book.

Japanese Highball

Toki Whisky, Sparkling Mineral Water, Lemon Oil (18)

It is difficult to drink whisky straight while having a meal. The addition of soda water tempers the whisky's strength and makes it enjoyable with food.

Popularized in the 1950s.

El Diablo

Reposado Tequila, DeeDee's Wine, Cassis, Ginger Beer, Lime (18)

The earliest known reference to the El Diablo cocktail is found in Trader Vic's Book of Food and Drink published in 1946. In that book it is referred to as the Mexican El Diablo.

CLASSIC

Three Dots & A Dash

House Demerara Rum, Clement Bleue Canne, Falernum, Honey, Orange, Lime (19)

This tiki classic was created during WWII by the godfather of the genre himself, Donn Beach. The name means “victory” in Morse Code.

Daiquiri

House Rum Blend, Lime, Sugar (17)

The drink was supposedly invented by an American mining engineer, named Jennings Cox, who was in Cuba at the time of the Spanish-American War. It is also possible that William A. Chanler, a US congressman who purchased the Santiago iron mines in 1902, introduced the daiquiri to clubs in New York in that year.

Dark & Moody Daiquiri

Fernet Branca, Green Chartreuse, Lime (19)

Chartreuse has been made by the Carthusian Monks since 1737. It is composed of distilled alcohol aged with 130 herbs, plants and flowers. It is one of the handful of liqueurs that continue to age and improve in the bottle.

A Daiquiri Of Carol's Demise

Pineau des Charentes, Rhum JM, Banana, Lime (18)

According to legend, during the harvest of 1589, a winemaker accidentally added grape must into a barrel that he believed was empty but in fact contained eau de vie. The mixture was duly returned to the cellars for fermentation. A few years later, the barrel was retrieved and was found to contain the drink that is now associated with the region of Charente.

Sloe Gin Fizz

Sipsmith Sloe Gin, Grapefruit Gin, St. Germain, Lavender, Citrus, Egg White (18)

The first printed reference to "fizz" is in the 1887 edition of Jerry Thomas' Bartender's Guide, which contains six such recipes. The fizz became widely popular in America between 1900 and the 1940s. Known as the hometown specialty of New Orleans, the gin fizz was so popular that bars would employ teams of bartenders that would take turns shaking the drinks.

CLASSIC

Jack Rose

Laird's Apple Brandy, Grenadine, Lime, Angostura (18)

*According to David Embury's The Fine Art of Mixing Drinks, during the mid-20th century, the Jack Rose was a pillar of basic cocktail-mixing knowledge. The origin of its name is disputed: some credit it to an early 20th-century hit man called "Bald Jack Rose," while others connect it to Jersey City bartender Frank J. May, who was also known as Jack Rose. What is certain is that the Jack Rose is a New Jersey cocktail through and through.*

Champs-Elysées

Cognac, Chartreuse, Honey, Lime, Angostura (19)

*A classic riff on the Sidecar, this one is named after the famed Parisian boulevard. This cocktail first appeared the Harry Craddock's 1930 Savoy Cocktail Book, though little else is known about it's history.*

Bijou

Gin, Chartreuse, Mancino Rosso Amaranto, Orange Bitters (19)

This cocktail was invented by Harry Johnson, "the father of professional bartending", who called it bijou because it combined the colors of three jewels: gin for diamond, vermouth for ruby, and chartreuse for emerald.

Charlie Chaplin

Grilled Apricot Cognac, Sloe Gin, Lime (17)

The Charlie Chaplin cocktail was one of the premier drinks of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City before 1920. The drink is named in honor of Charlie Chaplin, the famous comedic actor and filmmaker who was best known for his silent films of the 1920s through the 1940s.

Vieux Carré

Landy VSOP Cognac, James E. Pepper Rye,
Mancino Rosso Amaranto, Bénédictine, Bitters (18)

"Old Quarter" in French, this is the signature cocktail of the Hotel Monteleone in New Orleans created in 1938 by Walter Bergeron.

Stinger

Gin, Giffard Menthe-Pastille, Cacao (8)

The Stinger was not initially seen as a cocktail, but rather a digestif. Writing in the 1910s and 1920s, humorist Don Marquis's "Hermione" refused to refer to the Stinger as a cocktail, indicating its status in upper-class society. Over time, however, the Stinger came to be consumed like a cocktail.
